

Language Learning Journal

Special Issue: Call for Papers

LANGUAGES IN HIGHER EDUCATION

This special issue of the Language Learning Journal will focus on Languages in Higher Education.

We would welcome papers on any aspect of language learning and teaching in higher education, including the following examples:

- University partnerships with schools and colleges to promote and support language learning
- Language learning and teaching in university classrooms and in informal settings
- New technologies in language teaching
- Independent language learning
- Action research in language learning and teaching

The issue will be guest edited by the Higher Education Academy Subject Centre for Languages, Linguistics and Area Studies (LLAS) at the University of Southampton.

Enquiries should be sent to llas@soton.ac.uk
All submissions should be received no later than 30th November 2010.

Contributors are advised to read the Language Learning Journal's submission guidelines for information concerning length, organisation and layout of articles. These can be found at www.tandf.co.uk/journals/rlj

Listen to Norbert Pachler, Douglas Allford and Elspeth Broady of the Language Learning Journal discuss many subjects surrounding their influential journal; from the origin and history, role of the editorial board and the future of the journal. Douglas also offers prospective authors advice on the kind of research the journal is looking to attract.

Routledge
Taylor & Francis Group